

Don't burn your temperature probes!

Overheating is the most common way to permanently damage a temperature probe.

Avoid a meltdown!

Don't use the temperature probe in flames or on hot plate surfaces.

Remember, 150°C is the maximum temperature most standard temperature probes can tolerate.

Get more tips for your temperature probe!

